WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

NOTICE

The names in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA are selected not as the best but as an attempt to choose the best known men and women of the country in all lines of useful and reputable achievements.

NOTICE

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA is thoroughly revised, brought down, and reissued biennially. The next edition, (Vol. 15) will be for the years 1928-1929 and will be issued in 1928.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA aims to give a brief, crisp personal sketch of every living American whose position or achievements make his personality of general interest, and tells just the things every intelligent person wants to know about those who are most conspicuous in every reputable walk of life.

A valuable feature of the book will be found in the address appended to each sketch. No other work has ever attempted the difficult task of finding and furnishing the addresses of leading Americans in all parts of the world. Thus, the book possesses not only the best attributes of a Biographical Dictionary but is also a handy Directory of those living people of America in whom almost everybody is interested.

THE FIRST EDITION, VOL. I (1899-1900), containing 827 pages and 8,602 sketches.

THE SECOND EDITION, VOL. II (1901-2), containing 1,100 pages and 11,551 sketches.

THE THIRD EDITION, VOL. III (1903-5), containing 1,100 pages and 14,443 sketches.

THE FOURTH EDITION, VOL. IV (1906-7), containing 1,000 pages and 16,216 sketches.

THE FIFTH EDITION, VOL. V (1908-9), containing 2,304 pages (32+2,272=2,304), and 16,395 sketches, 2,057 of which appeared in no previous edition.

THE SIXTH EDITION, VOL. VI (1910-11), containing 468 pages and 17,546 sketches, 2,831 of which appeared in no previous edition.

THE SEVENTH EDITION, VOL. VII (1912-13), containing 2,664 pages (24+2,640) and 18,794 sketches, 2,928 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE EIGHTH EDITION, VOL. VIII (1914-15), containing 2,920 pages (32+2,888) and 21,459 sketches, 4,426 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE NINTH EDITION, VOL. IX (1916-17), containing 3,056 pages (32+3,024) and 21,922 sketches, 2,589 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE TENTH EDITION, VOL. X (1918-19), containing 3,296 pages, and 22,968 sketches, 3,191 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE ELEVENTH EDITION, VOL. XI (1920-21), conining 3,302 pages, and 23,443 sketches, 2,514 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE TWELFTH EDITION, VOL. 12 (1922-23), conining 3,520 pages, and 24,278 sketches, 3,339 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE THIRTEENTH EDITION, VOL. 13 (1924-25), containing 3,712 pages, and 25,357 sketches, 2,774 of which appeared in no previous issue.

THE FOURTEENTH EDITION, VOL. 14 (1926-27), containing 2,270 pages (enlarged size) and 26,915 sketches, 3,491 of which appeared in no previous issue.

PREFACE

For more than a quarter of a century WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA maintained a uniformity in structure and physical appearance—style and quality of binding, typographical setting and general make-up—that rendered it readily distinguishable by all constant users of the volume, and familiar to a large percentage of people of education and culture in all parts of the world.

Steadily growing bulkiness, however, at length rendered mechanical adjustments and an enlarged page necessary in order to provide room for the inclusion of a constantly expanding number of deserving names.

The present edition, in a new size and an entirely new dress, is presented as the best possible solution of an emergency that could not be disregarded.

The new size is just what could be desired for compactness, and for general convenience, and is a great improvement on the earlier editions. The type was designed scientifically for space-saving and ease in reading, and the arrangement of the volume throughout is in keeping with the up-to-date policy pursued from the very first by the publishers of this standard reference book.

Notwithstanding the fact that the previous edition (the edition for 1924-1925) contains 3,700 pages, this new volume, with a less number of pages, is more inclusive of both names and biographical details.

The conspicuously outstanding feature of the book in the matter of added details will be found in the names of children. So many requests had come to the editor, requests running back through all the years since publication of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA was begun, that a decision was finally reached to make an attempt to respond to a demand for information of undoubted value to a large number, if not all, of the users of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA—information hitherto quite inaccessible if not altogether unattainable in printed form.

To that end a place was provided for the desired names in the usual questionnaire which was mailed to each member of the "Who's Who" family. The responses have been made a part of the sketches in this volume. However, every parent did not respond to the request; and for that reason the names of children do not appear in a considerable number of instances.

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA "began to be" away back in the nineties, and the first edition became a reality in 1899. Since then a new edition, carefully revised and considerably enlarged has appeared every two years. The initial volume, containing 827 pages, grew into a goodly volume of 3,712 pages (of the original size) in 1924, while the present edition, with its greatly enlarged page and closer-fitting type, contains 2,271 pages.

The first edition contained 8,602 biographies, and the present edition (Vol. 14) contains 26,915, or more than three times the original number, and 1,558 more than appeared in the last previous edition (Vol. 13).

NOTE—In the preface of a book of reference so long established and so well known as WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, little can be said that is not practically a repetition of the introductory remarks contained in earlier editions. This preface is an adaptation, substantially, of the prefaces of earlier editions, the latest figures, of course, being substituted for the earlier ones.

Notwithstanding the increase in the number of sketches in the present edition, over any of its predecessors, many sketches will not be found which appeared in earlier issues; and there have been omitted 1,933 sketches appearing in the edition for 1924-1925. These omissions were rendered necessary for various reasons, such as retirement from public office and from notable private or public enterprises, when official position and the like constituted the only grounds for inclusion; while the death roll of the last biennium made necessary the omission of 1,291 sketches, appearing in the preceding edition. The death record of those whose sketches appear in all volumes of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA comprises 12,068 names. The sketches dropped from the various editions for other reasons aggregate 10,051, or about 45 per cent of the total number of omissions.

A few sketches were omitted because repeated requests to revise and verify personal data failed to elicit any response, and present addresses could not be ascertained. It may be safely assumed that some of those of whom no trace could be found have passed away. Others have removed to unknown locations, leaving no forwarding address. It is probable, therefore, that names which have been omitted, for the time, for want of up-to-date information concerning them, may be reinstated in future editions.

Seekers for information in regard to omitted names are referred to previous editions for the latest available data.

The omission of sketches appearing in the edition for 1924-1925 are more than offset by the inclusion (in this volume) of 3,491 biographies which have appeared in no previous edition.

All cross-references in the earlier editions were dropped from the edition for 1914-1915 (Vol. VIII), and those in the editions for 1914-1915 to 1924-1925, inclusive, pertaining to persons who have died, have been omitted from the present volume; but cross-references to the sketches of those who have died since publication of the edition for 1924-1925 have been included.

Cross-references to the omitted sketches (for Vol. 1914-1915 to Vol. 1924-1925), of persons still living, have been retained.

If to the 26,915 life sketches in this issue be added the 22,119 appearing in previous editions, but omitted from time to time, a grand total of 49,034 biographical sketches will be available for ready reference to possessors of a complete file of the volumes of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA.

No other volume has covered the biographical field of America in any such complete and authentic way.

It has been the rule arbitrarily to include sketches of all officers of the Army above the rank of colonel and all officers of the Navy above the rank of captain. An exception was made in the 1918-1919 edition, on account of the World War, and colonels of the Army and captains of the Navy were also included. With publication of the edition for 1920-1921 the original rule was again adopted and sketches now appear only of officers of the Army above the rank of colonel and of officers of the Navy above the rank of captain, except for the attainment of special distinction not due alone to military or naval rank.

Each succeeding volume has presented sketches of living notabilities with such completeness and authenticity as to make it indispensable for daily reference, while the old editions become more and more valuable as records of those who have died, or who, for some other reason, have not been retained in this book.

It is doubtless true that the fitness of every name included will not be apparent to every user of the book. The artist will expect the volume to be especially complete in the inclusion of fellow artists; the possessor of literary tastes will be disappointed if some author's name be missing; the scientist will miss names belonging to his own particular department of research. It is a fact, however, that while the standard of admission has from the first been high, there has been an unremitting effort to satisfy the reasonable expectations of those of all professions and vocations in regard to the names included. If errors have been made, they have been in the main, on the side of liberality, with a view to making the book useful in the highest degree.

The invitation extended in former editions for the suggestion of new names for inclusion has met with ready and cordial response. In this way many eligible names have been brought to the attention of the editor, and they were given a place in the book, provided the necessary data could be procured. But it should be understood that if a suggested name does not subsequently appear, the omission is not necessarily an indication that the name has been rejected, for there are still occasional instances of failure to respond to requests for the required facts, without which a sketch cannot be included. All sketches are prepared from first-hand material only.

Not a single sketch in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA has been paid for—and none can be paid for.

The compilations of statistics pertaining to the educational advantages of the persons mentioned in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA which appeared in the first three editions (1899-1900, 1901-1902, and 1903-1905) and subsequently in the edition for 1910-1911 (reprinted in the editions for 1916-1917 and 1918-1919) created wide-spread interest, and many requests came to the editor's desk that a similar study be made of the book, in a later and more comprehensive edition. To meet what appeared to be a general demand of the educational and scientific world, an exhaustive study was made of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA for 1922-1923, along the same lines followed in regard to the studies of the earlier editions.

The result was printed in the edition for 1924-1925 (Vol. 13), and proved to be even more interesting and instructive than the earlier tabulations. It immediately became the subject of much discussion and comment, which have continued with but slight abatement.

For the convenience of those who may wish to consult the tabulation it has been reproduced in this volume (see page 25).

It is believed that the presentation provides the most satisfactory basis for sociological investigation, and study along kindred lines, that can anywhere be found.

In this connection the following excerpt from the prefatory remarks in the initial volume of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA may be of interest:

"This educational inquiry might, of course, be carried much farther, so as to cover even more completely, as one scientific man suggests, 'compiled statistics showing where the various people came from, and what sections and institutions had given us the most eminent men in the several lines.' It might also be found what proportion came from the country and the cities respectively (doubtless with a preponderance in favor of rural youth), while as to present residence the balance would, without question, be in favor of city and suburban homes."

This statement is equally as significant and forceful to-day as it was a quarter of a century ago. It bore timely fruit in a study entitled "The Occupation and Environment of Fathers of American Notables," by Professor Stephen S. Visher, of Indiana University, which was printed in the edition of 1924-1925, and is reprinted on pages 29 and 30 of this volume.

A careful perusal of these studies is especially commended to all users of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA.

A summary of birthplaces and the present addresses, by states and countries, of all the persons biographically sketched, will be found in its accustomed place.

The rules governing the admission of names appear on page 21, under the caption, "Qualifications for Admission."

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA aims to give brief, crisp, personal sketches of the most notable living Americans in all parts of the world—the men and women whose position or achievements make them of general interest. It tells just the things every intelligent person wants to know about those who are most conspicuous in every reputable walk of life—birthplace, age, parentage, education, college or university degrees, occupation, position, achievements, politics, societies, clubs, marriages, etc.—in fact, the chief features of each career, without eulogy or criticism.

It should be borne in mind, however, that the names in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA have been selected not as the best but as an attempt to choose the best known men and women of the country. Taking the estimated population of 114,000,000 (in 1926) as a basis of computation, the "WHO'S WHO" family as at present constituted (26,915) represents one out of every 4,240 of the population of the United States.

Suggestions for improvement, changes in biographical data, notices of deaths and changes of address as they occur, are invited.

The demonstrated usefulness of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA has extended to practically all classes of men and institutions, and the information which this book alone possesses makes it a practical necessity for almost every intelligent person. In educational institutions of all classes it has its recognized place, as a matter of course, and the rapidly increasing use of the book in the schoolroom is creating an interest not known before, in important personages and present-day events, and arousing a spirit of inquiry and emulation which cannot fail to prove of great practical benefit to the pupil in after life.

The best educational authorities recognize the value of high ideals, as exemplified in the lives of successful men and women, in shaping the aspirations of the growing mind. WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA is the only source to which teacher and student may turn, with assurance, for exact information pertaining to the careers of practically all of the most conspicuous living Americans. In the pages of this volume are mirrored the national life in all its various phases; the developments of science and industry; the marshaling of financial forces on a scale never before attempted; the building up of intelligence by the increasing magnificence and widening scope of educational facilities; the growing power of the Nation in military, naval and commercial strength; the development of literature and art; the ministry of the Gospel at home and abroad through American agencies; the progress and evolution of new social and political theories and potentialities. All these and other phases of American activity and progress are pictured through the life-sketches of the men and women who best represent them.

An attentive reading of the life-sketches in this volume discloses many extraordinary examples of industry, which are overlooked in a cursory reading, but which, nevertheless, are full of valuable suggestion for the thoughtful mind. Many deeds of noble and beneficent achievement are recorded in these life-histories; and here also are chronicled thousands of activities which might be emulated with profit, not only by the youth of the country, but by all classes of American citizenship.

Attention is again called to the fact that certain publishers, not only in this country but abroad, have been trading upon the good reputation of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Some of them, more unscrupulous than others, have falsely tried by various suggestive and misleading methods to link in the public mind the name of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA with their own ephemeral publications. Several publishers have not scrupled at sending broadcast circulars and blank forms in almost exact imitation of printed matter designed for WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA and for years used in connection with the gathering of data or the sale and distribution of this book. The clever imposition seems to have worked well, judged by complaints which have come from nearly all sections of the country telling of the manner in which the deception was practiced. Other publishers who have been more wary have been scarcely less honest in the endeavor to create the impression that in some way WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA is behind their schemes.

Thanks are due to the many friends who have from time to time kindly sent circulars and letters of information which have aided, in some instances, in the taking of steps to forestall the thinly-veiled plans of designing impostors.

July 1, 1926.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR ADMISSION TO WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA

The standards of admission to WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA divide the eligibles into two classes: (1) those who are selected on account of special prominence in creditable lines of effort, making them the subjects of extensive interest, inquiry or discussion in this country; and (2) those who are arbitrarily included on account of official position—civil, military, naval, religious, or educational.

The first of these two classes comprises persons who have accomplished some conspicuous achievement—something out of the ordinary, so to speak—something which distinguishes them from the vast majority of their contemporaries. This class is confined to Americans, or those who are so prominently identified with American affairs as to be the subjects of wide inquiry or discussion in the United States. Thus a few foreign actors, singers, lecturers and others are included, who, by frequent visits to America, or in some other way, have become the subjects of common American interest. Names appear of those who are broadly prominent in some special field but who are little known in their own communities. The man of great achievement may be scarcely known at all in the particular locality in which he lives. The national character is frequently he whose work is better known than himself, and it is pertinent personal information concerning such an individual that WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA aims to gather and disseminate.

The arbitrary class embraces without regard to notability or prominence in any other respect, the following: All members of Congress; members of the Cabinet; all United States judges; all governors of States, Territories and island possessions of the United States; Federal department heads; all judges of State and Territorial Courts of highest appellate jurisdiction; all American ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary, and all ambassadors and ministers accredited to this country; all American consuls at important places in foreign countries; all living American authors of books possessing more than ephemeral value; the attorneys general of the various States; all officers of the Army above the rank of colonel, and of the Navy above the rank of captain; heads of all the larger universities and colleges; heads of the leading societies devoted to philanthropic, educational and scientific aims; members of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Design, the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the National Institute of Arts and Letters; bishops and chief ecclesiastics of all the larger religious denominations of the United States; and others who are in like manner chosen because of their official relations and affiliations.

To be sure, the majority of the names in the arbitrary classification would be admitted without hesitation even if they did not belong to the classification indicated, because of a personal record not at all dependent upon official position.

Not a single sketch in "Who's Who in America" has been paid for—and none can be paid for.

In the foregoing table are listed the 55 States and Territories of the United States, including Alaska, Danish West Indies—Virgin Islands (acquired in 1917), Territory of Hawaii, Porto Rico, the District of Columbia, the Philippine Islands, the Canal Zone, and 85 foreign countries or their dependencies as locations of the birth or residence of persons whose names appear in the present volume.

Of the total number of 26,915 names listed, 24,112, or 89.58 per cent, are natives of the United States; 2,566, or 9.53 per cent, are of foreign birth; 9 were born at sea, and 228 do not report as to place of birth. For the sake of comparison, it may be stated that of persons whose names appear in the last previous edition (1924-1925) 89.52 per cent were native and 9.80 per cent were foreign born.

A glance at the table shows that the older settled states, containing the centres of population, largely predominate as the birthplaces of people whose names appear in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. In proportion to population, the Atlantic States rank very high, while states north of the Ohio River have contributed generously to the list. New York State occupies the premier position with 3,565 names, followed by Pennsylvania, with 2,129; Massachusetts, 2,050; Ohio, 1,975; Illinois, 1,608; Indiana, 914; Iowa, 788; Missouri, 726; Michigan, 718, and Virginia, 706. Wisconsin contributes 698 names, Connecticut, 606, while New Jersey and Maine follow closely with more than 500 each. Kentucky is credited with 510; Maryland, 495; Tennessee, 419; California, 396; North Carolina, 385; New Hampshire, 339; Minnesota, 337; Georgia, 325; Vermont, 315; Alabama, 295; South Carolina, 283; Texas, 274; Kansas, 258; Rhode Island, 232; Mississippi, 218; District of Columbia, 207; West Virginia, 196; Louisiana, 165; Nebraska, 163, and Arkansas, 120.

As to number of residents, New York stands first with 5,590; Massachusetts, 2,027; Illinois, 1,788; Pennsylvania, 1,715; California, 1,495; District of Columbia, 1,451; Ohio, 1,041; New Jersey, 932; Connecticut, 765; Missouri, 645; Michigan, 526, and Maryland, 524.

Those below 500 and above 100 are: Minnesota, 490; Texas and Virginia, 427 each; Indiana, 404; Wisconsin, 373; Iowa, 346; Tennessee, 327; Georgia, 326; Colorado, 310; North Carolina, 305; Washington, 291; Kentucky, 273; Nebraska, 233; Alabama, 229; Kansas, 227; Rhode Island, 211; Oklahoma, 197; South Carolina and Maine, 194 each; Florida and New Hampshire, 191 each; Oregon, 173; Louisiana, 158; West Virginia, 154; Vermont, 128; South Dakota, 127; Arkansas, 111, and Mississippi, 102.

The table shows that 26,394 have their permanent homes in the United States, while 521 reside in foreign countries. Of those living abroad, 87 have their homes in France, 60 in England, 44 in China, 40 in Canada and 33 in Italy. These residents of foreign countries are made up principally of representatives of the United States Government, business men temporarily abroad, and missionaries of the various churches.

Of the foreign born who have cast their lot with the United States, Canada is credited with 559; England, 483; Germany, 308; Scotland, 129; Ireland, 126; Russia, 106; Sweden, 82; France, 76, and Italy, 68. Others, furnishing more than 20 each, in the order named, are Austria, 56; Norway, 54; Switzerland, 40; India, 36; Holland, 31; Hungary, 30; Poland and Denmark, 29 each; Wales, 28; Australia and Turkey, 25 each.

EDUCATIONAL STATISTICS

A Study of the Educational Advantages Enjoyed by the People Listed in Who's Who in America

Based on the Edition for 1922-23

The educational advantages enjoyed by the people biographically sketched in Who's Who in America, edition by edition, have furnished a theme of widespread interest and of continuous discussion. With these facts in mind, and with regard for the studies which have been made of several previous issues of the book, it has seemed timely for the making of an up-to-date analysis of the educational equipment of the members of the "Who's Who" family with the hope of casting at least an additional ray of light on the value of education as a factor in success.

One Reason for this new analysis, made up from dependable data supplied by the leading men and women of America, is the deepening impression throughout the length and breadth of the country in favor of higher education as the determining factor in the attainment of the most desirable positions in life. This impression began showing itself to a degree that called forth comment, about ten years ago. The eagerness for higher education was further evinced by thousands of young men released from military service at the close of the World War, who, by contact with other young men, better educated than themselves, gained a new insight concerning the advantages of the trained mind. As a result, many colleges and universities became over-crowded, and recently it has been found necessary to raise the standards of admission to hold back the flood of ambitious young men and women, many of whom, it is claimed, are not of the type that could profit by higher education and therefore should confine themselves to less exacting walks of life. Whether this is true or not may depend in an important degree upon the ability of the teachers to awaken latent possibilities in their students. This is a question now being widely discussed by educators, the answer to which may determine whether registration in many of the larger institutions shall be restricted or additional facilities shall be provided.

The method pursued in making up the "Educational Statistics" presented in the first edition of Who's Who in America—twenty-five years ago—was substantially followed in each of the subsequent studies, including the present study. The form of presentation adopted for the earlier editions also has been preserved with but slight verbal variation, and of course with the substitution of the latest figures for those pertaining to previous tabulations, in order that both comparison and study of the findings may be facilitated.

The earlier statistical presentations may be found in the following issues: Vol. I, 1899-1900; Vol. II, 1901-1902; Vol. III, 1903-1905; Vol. VI, 1910-1911; Vol. X, 1918-1919.

The present investigation was made independently and without regard to the findings of previous compilations, but the tabulated results are so nearly identical, when percentages are taken into account, as to compel a conviction in favor of the dependable character of the methods pursued and results obtained in each instance. This conviction is strengthened by the fact that the edition for 1901-1902 contains 11,551 names, or 2,949 names not in the 1899-1900 edition, its immediate predecessor, which contains 8,602 names; the edition for 1903-1905 contains 14,443, or 2,892 not in the 1901-1902 edition; the edition for 1910-1911 contains 17,546, or 3,103 not in the 1903-1905 edition and the edition for 1916-17 contains 21,922 names, or 4,376 not in the 1910-1911 edition.

This investigation was based on the edition of 1922-1923 (Vol. 12). A comparison, however, of the figures in the following tabulation with those of earlier editions will disclose that the percentages of the various editions are practically the same—but with a somewhat increased tendency in favor of higher education. Nevertheless, it is still believed that if all whose sketches appear in the earlier editions had furnished as complete educational data as were furnished for later editions, the percentages would even more nearly approximate those here presented.

The edition for 1916-17 (Vol. IX) from which the figures appearing in the 1918-1919 edition were made up, contains 21,922 names, whereas the edition for 1922-1923 (Vol. 12) contains 24,278 names. It will be seen, therefore, that 2,356 more names are represented in the present investigation than in any previous computation. Also it may be stated that there are nearly three times as many names in the 1922-1923 edition as were represented in the study of the first edition published in 1899.

FURNISHING INSUFFICIENT EDUCATIONAL DATA

Privately educated and attending private schools	331
Self-educated	58
Furnishing no educational data	1,814
Total	2,203

In explanation of the figures, it may be stated that out of a total of 24,278 persons whose names were included in the inquiry, 2,203 furnished insufficient educational data, leaving 22,075 who furnished general educational data—college, academy, normal school, high school, common school, and as graduates of U. S. naval or military academies and technical schools of the highest rank. This number (22,075) is taken as the basis for computation of percentages. (The bases for computations in all previous editions were arrived at in a similar way.)

Careful examination of the book (1922-1923 edition) shows that it contains the names of 13,511 persons who were graduates of collegiate institutions conferring baccalaureate degrees in letters, science or philosophy. The college graduates therefore represent 61.20 per cent of the total number furnishing the required data. If graduates of the U. S. naval and military academies (544) be added to the number of college graduates and regarded as being entitled to the same classification, the number of college graduates is increased to 14,055 and the percentage becomes 63.67. The percentage based on the edition of 1916-1917 was 59.15.

The figures show that the number attending college but not graduated, was 3,022, or 13.69 per cent of those giving general educational data, and the total number of collegians, graduated and ungraduated, was 17,077, making 77.36 per cent. Practically 77 per cent of those giving general educational data attended college. The percentage on a similar basis, calculated on figures made up from the edition of 1916-1917, was 72.88.

In round numbers, 77 out of every 100 persons giving educational data, whose names appear in the 1922-1923 edition, attended college, and 64 out of every 100 were college graduates.

Academies, seminaries and secondary schools (regarded as of equal educational rank) are credited with 1,574, or 7.13 per cent of those furnishing general educational data.

Normal schools are credited with 362, or 1.64 per cent; high schools with 1,182, or 5.35 per cent, and common or grammar schools with 1,880, or 8.52 per cent.

It is interesting to note, in recapitulation, that 2 persons out of every 100 included in this tabulation completed their preliminary education in normal schools; 5 out of every 100 completed their preliminary education in high schools; 9 out of every 100 passed into active life from common or grammar schools; 7 out of every 100 attended academies, seminaries or other secondary schools; 64 out of every 100 were college graduates; and 77 out of every 100 completed their education in college.

The total number furnishing insufficient educational data (2,203) is listed in the following classifications: privately educated, 331; self-educated, 58; furnishing no educational data, 1,814.

Possibly the common schools do not rank so high in the percentage column as might be expected; but it should be borne in mind that a large majority of those attaining the highest grades of scholarship began their training in the common schools and advanced from the high school to the college, thence to engage in professional or other vocations.

The total number who attended college is 17,077; the total number who did not attend college or who failed to report educational data is 7,201. Hence it will be seen that the number attending college is over twice as large as the number not possessing such advantages.

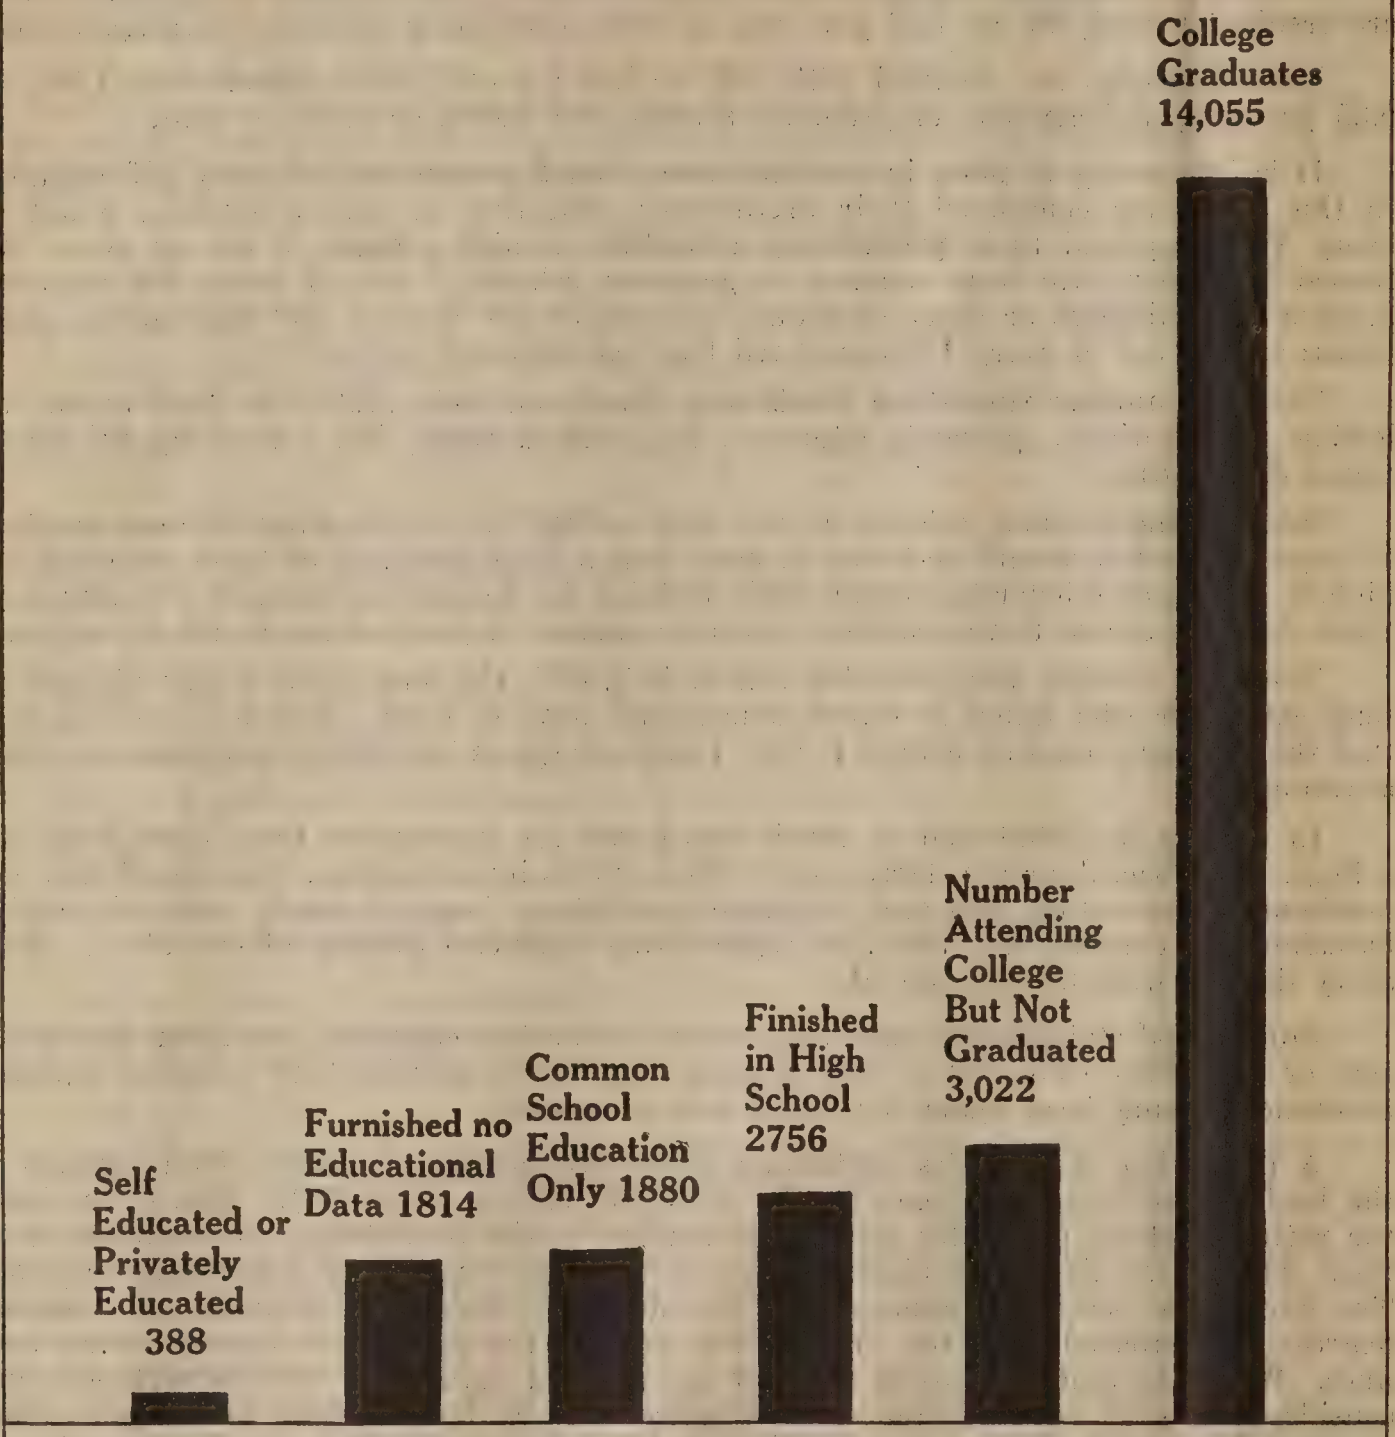
In making the tabulation no credit was given for graduation from more than one college. The baccalaureate degree, as in all previous investigations, was regarded as the maximum of education, and each collegiate institution, large or small, entitled to give baccalaureate degrees, was taken as representing a general average of education. Honorary degrees were not considered.

Educational statistics for men and women, separately computed, are given in the edition of 1903-1905 (Vol. III). The present compilation includes both sexes, no separate tabulation having been made for either men or women.

A tabulation of statistics pertaining to the preliminary education of all engaged in the leading professions, appears in the 1910-1911 edition (Vol. VI). This table shows the ratio of college graduates and non-graduates in the professions, as compared with those whose preliminary training was acquired in the common or preparatory schools. The figures also show the number who attended the professional schools and received degrees as compared with the number who entered the professions through other avenues. While the findings possess much of interest and value they were nevertheless not considered of sufficient importance to compensate for the large amount of time and effort required to make a similar investigation, and it is believed that the earlier compilation will still serve for all practical purposes. All who are interested in the subject are referred to Who's Who in America for 1910-1911.

The Value of An Education

As Shown By Who's Who In America



EDUCATION PAYS. Here is the proof: The chart illustrates at a glance the relative educational equipment of the 24,278 persons whose sketches appear in the 1922-1923 edition of Who's Who in America. College graduates numbered 14,055, or about 64 per cent of the total number whose sketches appear in the book. The significant feature of the chart is that whereas there are 14,055 college graduates named in the volume, the number reporting a common school education only is 1,880.

THE OCCUPATIONS AND ENVIRONMENT OF FATHERS OF AMERICAN NOTABLES*

A Study by Professor Stephen S. Visher, Indiana University.

There has been much interest in the question, "Where were the notable people born and in what kinds of homes?" It has been often asserted that most of the notables were born on farms. On the other hand, certain studies of small groups of especially eminent people have revealed that many were born in cities and in the homes of professional people.

In order to throw light upon these questions, a "special request" was sent by the publishers of Who's Who in America to the 24,278 persons whose biographical sketches appear in the edition of the book for 1922-1923 to indicate the type of place in which they were born (on a farm, in a country village, in a small city, in a large city or in the suburb of a large city). They were also asked to indicate the chief occupation of their father at about the time of their birth.

A study of the returns reveals that 6,288, or 25.9 per cent of these, were born on farms; 5,948, or 24.5 per cent, were born in villages and towns with a population of less than 8,000; 6,045, or 24.8 per cent, were born in small cities; 5,001, or 20.6 per cent, were born in large cities (over 50,000); and 996, or 4.1 per cent, were born in suburbs of large cities.

At the 1870 census, the census nearest the birth of most of the notables, about 10 per cent of the population of the United States lived in citiesof over 50,000; 10.9 per cent in small cities (8,000 to 50,000); 8.2 per cent in villages up to 8,000 and about 69.9 per cent on farms. The suburbs are estimated to have contained about 1 per cent of the population.

Thus in proportion to population, the large cities yielded 2.1 times as many notables as the average for the nation, the small cities 2.3 times as many, villages three times as many, and suburbs four times as many, but the strictly rural sections (farms) yield only about one-third the nation's average. Expressed in another way: In proportion to population, the cities, contributed nearly six times as many notables as did the farms, whereas villages contributed nearly nine times as many and suburbs nearly eleven times as many as the farms.

This does not prove that early life on a farm was not conducive to future eminence. Numerous bits of information indicate that a large share of the older American notables spent part of their youth on farms and considered that these experiences had been helpful in their development. Many, indeed, have spoken of themselves as having been reared on a farm when in fact they were born in a village or city and merely spent part of their formative period working on a farm, usually during their summer vacations.

The replies in respect to the occupations of the fathers of the notables in Who's Who in America reveal that 8,546, or 35.2 per cent, were business men; 8,327, or 34.3 per cent, were professional men; 5,681, or 23.4 per cent, were farmers; 1,530, or 6.3 per cent, were skilled or semi-skilled laborers; but that only 121, or 0.4 per cent, were unskilled laborers. There were also 73 reported as men of leisure.

At the 1870 census, about 5 per cent of America's men were business men; about 2.2 per cent were professional men; about 29.5 per cent were farmers (not including farm laborers, of which there were about an equal number); and 18 per cent were skilled or semi-skilled laborers, while 45 per cent were unskilled laborers.

Thus the business and professional men fathered seven and sixteen times, respectively, the number of notables that would be expected on the basis of the small proportion they made of the population. Farmers, on the other hand, fathered about one-fourth less than the proportionate share, but the farmers did much better than other manual workers, contributing two and a third times as many as skilled and semi-skilled laborers and 70 times as many as the nearly one-half of all the men of the nation who were classed as unskilled laborers.

Expressed in other words, the production of these notables by the higher type of laborers was about 30 times as great in proportion to population as by the unskilled laborers, whereas the farmers did 70 times as well as the unskilled laborers, business men 600 times as well, and professional men, 1,400 times as well. Thus, although only one unskilled laborer in about 37,500 (about the year 1870) fathered a son or daughter sufficiently noteworthy to win a place in "Who's Who," one skilled laborer in 1,250 had that distinction, one farmer in 550, one business man in 62, and one professional man in 27.

* During the course of the inquiry leading to the study here given by Professor Visher, numerous letters came to the office of Who's Who in America urging that the scope of the inquiry be enlarged to include mothers of American notables. It was contended, in many instances, that the occupations and environment of mothers are of equal if not of greater importance to the child than the occupations and environment of fathers. It was also contended by several correspondents that the inquiry could be applied with better purpose to mothers only, if either parent were omitted. It is believed, however, that the result of Professor Visher's study would have been but little affected, if at all, by the extension of the inquiry to include mothers or by its application to mothers only, for it is obvious that the occupational and environmental influences of both fathers and mothers are, in most cases, identical.—Editor.

CLERGYMEN'S SONS

A discussion has long been going on as to the comparative success of clergymen's sons. In order to obtain fuller evidence on this subject all persons sketched in Who's Who in America for 1922-1923 were asked to indicate the occupation of their fathers, a special place on the questionnaire being reserved for children of clergymen. On the basis of the full returns received, it appears that 2,695 persons, or 11.1 per cent, in the volume for 1922-1923 had a clergyman for a father. In addition a considerable number reported their father as a "farmer and preacher," "teacher and preacher," etc.

At the 1870 census (the one nearest the birth of most of these notables) there were about 40,100 Protestant clergymen in America (including the part-time clergymen). This was about 0.4 per cent of all the men. Thus it follows that in proportion to population, clergymen fathered fully 28 times the average number of notables. About the year 1870, one Protestant clergyman in each 15 had a child who later won a place in Who's Who in America. Hence Protestant clergymen about 1870 contributed in proportion to their numbers about 2,400 times as many eminent persons as did unskilled laborers, 35 times as many as did farmers, four times as many as business men and over twice as many as the average of other professional men.

INTERPRETATIONS

Two radically different interpretations have been offered concerning the comparative value of the several elements of the population in the production of notable men. Galton, Davenport, and certain other biologists have believed that heredity is of prime importance and hence that the notable men come from the intellectually superior elements of the population, which are concentrated in certain types of occupations and places. On the other hand, Ward, Cattell, Davies and others have emphasized the importance of the environment. Ward believed that there were 200 times as many men inherently capable of becoming eminent as do in fact become notable. Similarly, Cattell believes "America can have as many high-class scientific workers as we will give suitable opportunities to." On this basis of environment, the conditions revealed by the present study indicate not differences in ability, but instead, differences in educational opportunities, encouragement and leisure for constructive work. The high rank of clergymen may thus be due to superior opportunities along those lines, supplemented by helpful home training in serious thinking, thrift and expression.

Upon either interpretation, the situation today is probably appreciably different from that in 1870. If heredity is the main factor, doubtless a smaller percentage of the nation's exceptionally able men of the present time have become clergymen, and a larger percentage have gone into other professions and business. On the other hand, the proportion of farmers and unskilled laborers of unusual ability is probably less now than in 1870, because during recent decades there has been an active selective movement of many of the more alert and capable, from these occupations. If environment is the chief influence, the last half century has likewise seen a notable change in a widening of opportunities for education and an increase of leisure. Indeed, the children of successful merchants and business men today have about as much leisure and opportunity for education and self-expression as the children of professional men. Even the children of prosperous farmers have opportunities not common among farmers' sons of 1870.

CONCLUSIONS

This study does not indicate whether "nature" (environment) or "nurture" (heredity) is the more important nor does it accurately describe the conditions today, when the leaders of the next generation are being born. It does, however, clearly indicate that a large share of the notables of today have come from certain relatively minor elements, as to numbers, of the population. More than one-third have come from the professional classes which comprised only one-forty-fifth of the population of the United States in 1870. The 5 per cent of the men of America classed as business men contributed 35 per cent of the men and women sketched in the 1922-1923 edition of Who's Who in America. Thus 70 per cent of the notables were fathered by less than 7.5 per cent of the nation's men. In contrast, unskilled laborers fathered almost none of the notables in "Who's Who," and although farmers fathered 23.4 per cent, that per cent is about one-fourth less than their share in proportion to population.
